Dinorella: A Prehistoric Fairy Tale

By Pamela Duncan Edwards

INTRODUCTION

Ready for a new twist on the Cinderella fairy tale? A tale full of dinosaurs, mistaken identity and a battle? Well, wait no longer! It's . . .

Dinorella: A Prehistoric Fairy Tale by Pamela Duncan Edwards

NARRATOR: Dora, Doris and Dinorella lived down in the sand dunes in a dinosaur den. Dora and Doris did nothing all day. They dumped debris around the den. They never did the dusting or the dishes. Dinorella was dainty and dependable. Dora and Doris were dreadful to Dinorella. All day they demanded . . .

DORIS: Dinorella, dig the garden.

DORA: Dinorella, fetch us drinks.

DORIS: Dinorella, start the dinner.

DORA: (sniggering) She's a dingbat!

DORIS: (giggling) She's a dumbhead!

NARRATOR: One day a card was delivered to the den:

Dinosaur Dance
Duke Dudley's Den at dusk
Hors d'oeuvers, Dandelion Cola
Dancing until dawn

Duke Dudley was the most dashing dinosaur in the dunes.

DORA: (decorating herself with dinosaur jewels) I would die for a date with the duke.

DORIS: (sighing as she dolls up for the dance) Definitely.

DINORELLA: A dance. How divine!

DORIS: You can't go to the dance. You're too dowdy.

DORA: You're too dull. And you don't have decent dinosaur jewels. Of course you can't go to the dance.

NARRATOR: Poor Dinorella felt down in the dumps as she watched her stepsisters depart. Suddenly, Dinorella heard a droning noise.

FAIRYDACTYL: Don't be dismal. You shall go to the dance.

DINORELLA: But I'm so drab, and I don't have decent dinosaur jewels.

FAIRYDACTYL: I'll soon deal with that. (waves her wand and jewels magically appear) These will outdazzle all other dinosaur jewels.

DINORELLA: Darling, Fairydactyl!

NARRATOR: With her diamonds dangling, she set out for the dance. Dusk had fallen when Dinorella heard a deafening disturbance coming from the direction of Duke Dudley's Den. A dastardly deed was taking place. A Deinonychus was dragging off the Duke.

DUKE: I'm done for! He will devour me!

DEINONYCHUS: Indeed, I will! (evil laugh) I'll be digesting you by daybreak!

NARRATOR: Dinorella was not a daring dinosaur, but something drastic had to be done.

DINORELLA: I may become dessert, but I'm determined to drive away that dreaded carnivore. (climbing to the top of a dune and roared) You disgusting dummy, drop the Duke! (grabs some dirt and gets ready to attack)

NARRATOR: Dinorella began to hurl dirt balls at the deinonychus. The dumbfounded deinonychus stopped in disbelief.

DEINONYCHUS: Who called me a dummy?

NARRATOR: The moon's light caught Dinorella's dangling diamonds. Dots and dabs of light darted toward the deinonychus.

DEINONYCHUS: (blinded by the light) A devil! See its dreadful demon eyes?

NARRATOR: Dinorella detached a diamond and directed it toward the deinonychus. The diamond hit the deinonychus hard in his dentures.

DEINONYCHUS: (bellowing) The devil will destroy me with its deadly eyes!

NARRATOR: He dumped Duke Dudley and departed double-quick. (Deinonychus runs away) The den was dense with dinosaurs dashing about in distress.

DINOSAUR: A demon! We're doomed!

DUKE: Dimwits! Demons don't throw diamonds. It was a damsel who defended me with her dazzling dinosaur jewel. When I discover her, I shall ask her to be my darling.

NARRATOR: All the dinosaur dames were delirious.

DINOSAUR DAME 1: The jewel is mine!

DINOSAUR DAME 2: The jewel is mine!

DORIS: Mine!

DORA: (bellowing) No, definitely mine. I am the damsel you desire.

DUKE: I doubt it. Your dinosaur jewels don't match.

NARRATOR: Just then, Fairydactyl arrived at the dance. She quickly saw the dilemma.

FAIRYDACTYL: Where is Dinorella?

DORA: (scoffing) Dinorella! That dopey domestic?

DORIS: (laughing) Dinorella! She's back at the den.

NARRATOR: But Fairydactyl spied Dinorella dodging behind the dune.

FAIRYDACTYL: Dinorella, come down!

NARRATOR: So down came Dinorella, looking distracted.

DUKE: She wears but one dazzling jewel! (Dinorella's hands rush to her ears where there is only one dangling diamond left) Dinorella, you are adorable. You're definitely quite a dish. I beg you to be my dearest.

DINORELLA: Dreamy! (they dance off into the dawn)

DORA/DORIS: Drat!
