The Baptist Gourmet

By Jill Morley

TULULA: G'Mornin! Welcome to Channel 64's "Cookin' with Tulula." I'm Tulula Lee May, your Baptist Gourmet and before I lead you in a recipe, I'm gonna lead you in a prayer.

Lordy, Lordy, let me learn. Not to let my souffle burn. And if it does, oh promise me this. Someone in my kitchen will like it crisp! Amen.

INTRODUCTION

Meet Talula, the Baptist Gourmet as she walks you through the world of cooking that Julia Child would be proud of - From fried chicken to croutons shaped like the baby Jesus. The Baptist Gourmet by Jill Morely

(Tulula has her own cable cooking show. She is Southern probably from South Carolina or New Orleans.)

Last night, I was divinely inspired when the Lord came to me in a dream and he said, "Tulula, you are my culinary link to humanity. I bestow upon you the celestial preparation for fried grits." Ingredients are hominy, cheese, and the life-giving energy to all the Lord's creatures. . . fat.

First you must baptize your ingredients. (Throws water on the ingredients with fervor) You're baptized! You're baptized! You're baptized!

FOR EDUCATIONAL USE ONLY

Next, we finely chop the hominy and the cheese, which I already have done because they won't let me have the air time I need. (Smiles and winks at a producer off stage) Isn't that right, Jimmy? (Under her breath) Producer Shmoducer.

Then, we take the hominy, the cheese, we put it in a skillet and FRY IT UP!!! JUST FRY IT UP! IN THE NAME OF THE LORD, JUST FRY IT UP!!!! (Lightheaded, she sits down and fans herself) Oh, this is gonna be a good one.

Now, while we're waitin' for the culinary miracle, like waitin' for the second coming, I'd like to read some of my viewer mail. Preacher Mapplethorpe writes, "Dear Tulula, thank you for bringing that fried Caesar's salad to the church bazaar last week. Everyone raved over those cute little baby Jesus croutons. And that parmesan cheese looked like snow in the manger!" Amen.

Tessie Jo Miller from Duncan Road asks, "Dear Tulula, what is the rule of thumb in Southern Baptist food preparation?" Tessie, has your cheese dun slid off your cracker? Just slap on some cheese and FRY IT UP! FRY IT UP! IN THE NAME OF THE LORD, JUST FRY IT! (Collapses and fans herself again) Lord save us all.

FOR EDUCATIONAL USE ONLY

Letter from Madge Peeker on Winston Lane, "How do I make my home fried taters taste like yours?" Madge, I seen the way you fry those taters at the church socials. You just chop 'em all up like they was the devil's spawn! With each slice, you must instill goodness and ethics and morality. Handle your taters the way God handles His children and your creation will be as perfect as His. On that note, let's resurrect those grits. . . . (She tastes them.) Mmmmmmm, mmmmmmm, just like the Lord woulda made them.

Now, tell your Catholic friends to tune in next week because I'm making fried St. Joan Kabobs! Bye y' all!!!!

SOURCE INFORMATION

Author: Jill Morley
Book: Even More Monologues for Women by Women
ISBN: 978-0325002477
Publisher: Heinemann
Date(Month/Year): March 2001

AWARD HISTORY

2012 National Qualifier

FOR EDUCATIONAL USE ONLY