Hooway for Wodney Wat

By Helen Lester

INTRODUCTION

Do kids have to "fit in" by dressing, acting and thinking like everyone else. Let's hear a resounding NO! Hooway for Wodney Wat by Helen Lester explores the fear we all have about being different and encourages us to embrace our differences as advantages. Or as Rodney Rat would say "embwace or diffewences". Hooway for Wodeny Wat by Helen Letser.

NARRATOR: Poor Wodney.

WODNEY: Wodney Wat.

NARRATOR: His real name was Rodney Rat, but he couldn't pronounce his r's. To make matters worse, he was a rodent.

WODNEY: A wodent.

CLASSMATE 1: What's your name, Wodney?

WODNEY: (whispers) Wodney Wat

CLASSMATE 2: What's another name for bunny?

WODNEY: (mumbling) Wabbit.

CLASSMATE 3: (winking) And how does a train travel?

WODNEY: (miserabley) A twain twavels on twain twacks.

NARRATOR: All of this teasing day in and day out made Wodney the shyest rodent in his elementary school. His squeak could barely be heard in class.

WODNEY: (squeak)

NARRATOR: He gnawed lunch alone.

WODNEY: (demonstrate a rodent eating lunch)

FOR EDUCATIONAL USE

NARRATOR: And while the other rodents scurried and scooted about at recess, Wodney hid inside his jacket.

WODNEY: (Demonstrate)

NARRATOR: Then one day as the rodents were taking turns doing wheelies, a new rodent – a very large rodent – barged into the classroom and announced:

CAMILLA: My name is Camilla Capybara. I'm bigger than any of you. I'm meaner than any of you and I'm smarter than any of you.

NARRATOR: And then she added

CAMILLA: So there.

NARRATOR: With that she accidentally-on-purpose elbowed an ear, bumped two noses, stepped on three tails, and lay down on a desk. Fur prickled in fear through the classroom. She sure was bigger than any of them. She sure looked meaner than any of them. Was she smarter than any of them?

MISS FUZZLEWORTH: What's 2 + 2?

CAMILLA: (shouting) FOUR!

NARRATOR: Without even bothering to raise her paw.

CAMILLA: And furthermore, 4+4 is 8, 8+8 is 6 and 243 + 125 is 368.

NARRATOR: Later, when Miss Fuzzleworth asked

MISS FUZZLEWORTH: What's the capital of . . . .

NARRATOR: Camilla interrupted

CAMILLA: New York, Albany, Population 295,594.

NARRATOR: And during science, in answer to the question

MISS FUZZLEWORTH: What part of a plant is blow the ground?

NARRATOR: Camilla Capybara danced on her desk and sang

CAMILLA: Root! Root! Rooty-toot-toot!

CLASSMATE 1: Yup

NARRATOR: thought all the other rodents

FOR EDUCATIONAL USE ONLY

CLASSMATE 2: She's smarter than we are, too.

NARRATOR: They felt very, very uncomfortable. Every afternoon, just before the final recess, Miss Fuzzleworth drew a name from her hat to see who would be the leader for their favorite game, Simon Says. She scrunched her eyes closed and jiggled the hat.

MISS FUZZLEWORTH: (demonstrate)

NARRATOR: Would it be Hairy Hamster? Minifeet Mouse? Grizzlefriz Guinea Pig? Could it be big, mean, smart Camilla Capybara? Miss Fuzzleworth's paw reached in and pulled out the name of MISS FUZZLEWORTH: . . . Wodney Wat!

NARRATOR: The bell rang, there was a wild scurry for the door, and Camilla Capybara was the first on the playground, having trampled the others in her path. To Wodney she looked especially scary. What would she do when she heard him speak? Breathe capybara breath in his face?

WODNEY: (Demonstrate/pantomime)

NARRATOR: Or tie him up in his own tail?

WODNEY: (Demonstrate/pantomime)

NARRATOR: Or even POUNCE on him?

WODNEY: (Demonstrate/pantomime)

NARRATOR: The tiny, trembling leader of the game stood before the eager players, his head well inside his jacket, and squeaked.

WODNEY: Wodney says wap your paws awound your head."

NARRATOR: He peeked a little peek out of his jacket and saw

CAMILLA: (Demonstrate) WHAP! WHAP! WHAPPITY SLAPPITY WHAP!

NARRATOR: Camilla was whapping her paws around her head so hard she became dizzy, gave herself a headache, and had to sit down. The other rodents couldn't help giggling.

FOR EDUCATIONAL USE ONLY

WODNEY: Wodney says play Wing Awound the Wosey.

NARRATOR: Camilla put out her arms like wings and made an airplane noise

CAMILLA: Nnnnrrrr

NARRATOR: But where was the wosey? WHAT was a wosey?

CAMILLA: (Look frantically for a wosey)

NARRATOR: By now Wodney's voice was stronger and his head was entirely out of his jacket.

WODNEY: Wake the leaves!

NARRATOR: Nobody moved.

WODNEY: Wodney says wake the leaves.

NARRATOR: While Hairy, Minifeet, and Grizzlefriz and the others busied themselves raking,

NARRATOR: Camilla Capybara grabbed one leaf.

CAMILLA: (yelling) Wake up!

NARRATOR: She snatched another

CAMILLA: (yelling) Come on, you. Up, up, up!

NARRATOR: And another

CAMILLA: Rise and shine

NARRATOR: And another

CAMILLA: BOO!

NARRATOR: By now all the other rodents were squealing with laughter

VARIOIUS CLASSMATES: (Squeal with laughter)

NARRATOR: All but Camilla, who frowned.

CAMILLA: Stupid leaves. They won't wake up!"

NARRATOR: And why was everyone laughing at her? Such bullies! In a voice so strong he had to hold his own ears, Wodney called

WODNEY: Wodney says go west!

FOR EDUCATIONAL USE ONLY

NARRATOR: The rodents collapsed in a happy heap for a rest

CAMILLA: Go west.

NARRATOR: Feeling very smart that she could tell directions by the sun said

CAMILLA: All right. I shall go west.

NARRATOR: And then she added

CAMILLA: So there.

NARRATOR: West she stomped. Forever. She was gone . . . And from that day on the pupils of PS 142 Elementary School for Rodents never teased Wodney again. He was their hero

VARIOUS CLASSMATES: Hooway for Wodney Wat! Whoot! Whoot! Wooty-toot-toot!

SOURCE INFORMATION

Author: Helen Lester
ISBN: 978-0618216123
Publisher: Houghton Mifflin Company
Date (Month/Year): May 2002

AWARD HISTORY

KS State Qualifier

FOR EDUCATIONAL USE ONLY