Villains, Victims, and Very Big Feelings

By Rebecca Young

THE NOT-SO-WICKED WITCH: (Pg 1) You know, you really shouldn't believe everything you hear. It'll get you into trouble every time. With stories, they get retold so much that by the time someone writes them down, there isn't anything but half-truths hidden within them. They become a pack of lies, twisted and turned until nobody could straighten out the real story from what's left. Take me, for instance. I've got a story to tell. I do. But nobody wants to hear it. Instead they listen to Little Miss Good Witch. Somehow she made the whole world believe she's so sweet! Well, just like I'm not so wicked, she's not so good. She's messed up a time or two. Cast a bad spell. Brewed a rotten potion. Just never gets caught. But who you gonna believe? Someone dressed in black? Yeah, right. It's a bum rap! All I ask is that you take time to hear how things really happened. To me and to others. Oh, don't look so shocked. I'm not the only one. There are plenty more like me: Other characters with a story to tell, living lives of twisted truths.

INTRODUCTION

Imagine a world where the famous fantasy characters, villains, and superheroes finally get to interrupt the narrator and say, "Well . . . actually. . ."

As these legendary characters tell their messy, very human sides of the story, the fairy-tale facade collapses, replaced by the disquieting truth that even fictional characters may need some therapy -- and perhaps a little less judgment. The stories we thought we knew unravel into a fast-paced comedy about reputation, responsibility, and the very human need to finally be heard.

Villains, Victims and Very Big Feelings from Famous Fantasy Character Monologs by Rebecca Young

DOROTHY THE UNGRATEFUL: (enters skipping and happy, twists her ankle and the façade drops) (Pg 14) Follow the yellow brick road, my foot! This thing never ends! I've been skipping along for hours, and I think I'm going in circles! Why did I ever get directions from a bunch of munchkins? I should've known from all that giggling that they were up to something!

FOR EDUCATIONAL USE ONLY

THE NOT-SO-WICKED WITCH: (Pg 7) Glinda's the one that turned all of the townspeople into munchkins! And didn't even get in trouble. I turn one little guy into a scarecrow, and all of a sudden I'm wicked.

DOROTHY THE UNGRATEFUL: (Pg 14) There's probably no such thing as a Wizard of Oz or an Emerald City. They just wanted to get me as far away from their little town as possible before that wicked witch came back. Well, it wasn't my fault my house landed on her stupid sister. All I wanted was to go home. Couldn't Glinda just wave that magic wand of hers and send me back to Kansas? "Go to Oz," she said. "The Wizard will help you." What was wrong with her helping me?

THE NOT-SO-WICKED WITCH: (Pg 7) Everyone thinks Little Miss Good Witch is perfect! It makes me want to choke a toad! All pretty in pink like a big puff of cotton candy! Nobody thinks evil could reside in all that fluff! What do they give me to wear? Black, black, and more black! How's a person to look nice in that? And do you know how hot it gets wearing black all summer long? It's no wonder I'm a bit grouchy at times! Of course, she's all smiles and full of cute little songs with her perky little voice! Well, let her wear this get-up for a while and we'll see how she feels! But not Glinda! Oh no! She's the Good Witch! So what does that make me? The Bad One, of course. What a joke!

DOROTHY THE UNGRATEFUL: (Pg 14) After all, I landed my house on their stupid old witch, didn't I? Didn't she owe me something for that? I ask for help and instead I get some lame directions and a pair of glittery red shoes. Now she's got me walking in circles in a pair of shoes that are causing some very un-magical blisters! Oh, Auntie Em! There's no place like home! There's no place like home! (hobbles off)

THE NOT-SO-WICKED WITCH: (Pg 7) It makes me so mad; I've just got to zap someone! (Makes pointing gesture to someone flying through the air) Zap! (Blows off zapping finger) There. Now I do feel a little better. (cackles and exits in pursuit of Dorothy)

ACROPHOBIC SUPER-DUPER MAN: (Pg 99) (dodging the witch's "ZAP", he lands in a superhero pose) (in a superhero voice) It's an eagle. It's a jet. (drops the facade) It's ... oh, give me a break.

FOR EDUCATIONAL USE ONLY

Everyone knows it's me. But what I bet they don't know is: I absolutely hate flying. It scares me to death.

THE LONELY CAPTAIN HOOK: (Pg 76) (who may or may not be a little tipsy. He steps forward trying to one-up ASDM) Do you know what it's like being stuck out to sea, seeing nothin' but water for ages? It makes my sea legs quite wobbly, I tell you! (staggers a bit) And that ain't from the rum neither! Ha ha! I've been riding that ol' wooden bucket for months. Some days are real exciting, like when we're looting or fighting. Other times are just plain boring. Hanging out with a bunch of sweaty old men who haven't bathed since the last time we saw land!

ACROPHOBIC SUPER-DUPER MAN: (Pg 99) Do you know how far down the ground is from where I fly? A man could get seriously hurt if something went wrong. That's why I close my eyes sometimes, but do you know how many times I've had to dodge a plane? Or a flock of geese? Believe me, those birds aren't so nice when you upset their formation. I can't tell you how many times I've been attacked! One day I'm liable to get pecked to death, right up there in the sky. But what choice do I have?

THE LONELY CAPTAIN HOOK: (Pg 76) I actually look forward to seeing Peter flying around my ship, free as a bird. All dressed in green with that silly pointed hat! Playing tricks on my crew and tangling up my sails! Taunting us. I know you won't believe this, but I actually care about that silly boy named Peter. Without him, my ship would be in shambles! Whenever the crew gets cabin fever and start beating up on each other, here comes Peter, flitting about trying to cause trouble. He thinks he's annoying me, but I have no interest in hurting the little booger. He's the only thing exciting around here!

ACROPHOBIC SUPER-DUPER MAN: (Pg 99) When someone needs me, I have to get there fast. There's no advance warning. No time to hail a cab or hop on the subway! I've thought about getting a car, but people drive like maniacs! I guess, all in all, I'm safer in the air. It's kind of peaceful ... up in the clouds ... (Looks up at sky dreamily)

THE LONELY CAPTAIN HOOK: (Pg 76) Oh look! Here Peter comes now! "I'm gonna get you! You and that pixie bug! By hand or by hook, I'm gonna get you!" (Exits in pursuit of Peter)

FOR EDUCATIONAL USE ONLY

ACROPHOBIC SUPER-DUPER MAN: (Pg 99) (after saying a quick prayer, launches into the air) It's an eagle. It's a jet!

THE DISGRUNTLED TOOTH FAIRY: (Pg 10) (and a new flying creature softly descends, yawning) I am so tired! I spent all night flying around, and I'm plumb worn out! Not to mention bruised! Doesn't anyone use a nightlight anymore? I couldn't see a thing, and I must've bumped into a dozen dressers! And for what? No one even cares about me. Used to be, I'd get sweet little notes thanking me for visiting. But those days are long gone.

DISILLUSIONED SANDMAN: (Pg 124) (enters and nods in agreement) [You tell it sister!] (blows a puff of sand into the Tooth Fairy's face) This job is nothing like I thought it would be. It doesn't have the first thing to do with sand - not the real kind anyway! I pictured sandy beaches. Girls in bikinis. Drinks with fancy umbrellas. Parties and bonfires. The kind of job any guy would dream of having! Ha! You know what? This stupid job has zero to do with any of that. I work in complete darkness - stuck on the stinking third shift! I haven't seen the light of day since I started working. Who ever heard of a Sandman that helps people sleep?

THE DISGRUNTLED TOOTH FAIRY: (Pg 10) [I know!] Nowadays, if I do get a note, it's not to say thanks. Oooh, nooo! It's to tell me exactly how much I'm supposed to pay for a silly little white nub wrapped in bloody toilet paper! And it's not cheap either! (opens a note from a child) A dollar? You've got to be kidding me! Who pays a dollar for a tooth?

DISILLUSIONED SANDMAN: (Pg 124) [Yeah!] Whatever happened to counting sheep or drinking warm milk? Or Tylenol P.M.? What the heck do people need me for?

THE DISGRUNTLED TOOTH FAIRY: (Pg 10) I don't know why I do this night after night. Maybe I should move on. Be a fairy godmother or something. You know, turn pumpkins into coaches! Now, that would be cool! But then I think about all those children going to bed every night, waiting for me. How would they feel if I just didn't show up? Their little hearts would be broken. And what would parents do with all those little teeth? Throw them away? Oh, I couldn't let that happen!

DISILLUSIONED SANDMAN: (Pg 124) What about the hot chicks wanting to nap at the beach? Why can't I help them? How does a guy get promoted to a job like that? I'm stuck on the worst shift. No one - and I mean no one - above the age of fifteen and under the age of forty ever sleeps with a light on. Not even a tiny one. It's pitch black the whole night. And if you get caught flashing - that's code for turning on the light - it's instant termination! I don't know how much more I can take. How can they expect any normal guy to work this way? I got the wrong job!

FOR EDUCATIONAL USE ONLY

THE DISGRUNTLED TOOTH FAIRY: (Pg 10) Maybe I just need a nap ... (motions to The Sandman to hit her with the dust again) (Both exit as Little Red stealthily enters)

SECRET AGENT LITTLE RED RIDING HOOD: (Pg 31) I'd been following that wolf for weeks trying to pin something on him. I knew without a doubt that he was bad to the core. I just didn't have any proof. The little red riding hood thing was brilliant. He'd never suspect a helpless young girl on her way to see her grandma. Ha! I laugh at the thought of me being helpless! I'm at the top of my karate class! (does a few karate chops in the air) The basket of goodies was just too much to resist. That stupid wolf trailed me all the way up the mountain. Ducking behind trees. Crouching down beside bushes. He wasn't very clever at hiding, I can tell you that.

THE BIG BAD WOLF: (Pg 92) (hand cuffed behind his back) This is all a big mistake! It was a joke! An innocent prank gone wrong. I wasn't going to eat her! I promise! I'm a vegan. I don't even eat anything that's been anywhere near meat. I swear. I wasn't going to harm a hair on her hooded head. But a wolf's got to have some fun, you know?

SECRET AGENT LITTLE RED RIDING HOOD: (Pg 31) I didn't think he was ever going to take the lead and beat me there. I had to stop and tie my shoes twice just to give him a head start. Even then, I could hear the pitiful thing puffing like crazy. I was afraid I might have to give him mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and save his life instead of capturing him! But it was all going according to plan. The lady I hired to play my grandma played her part excellently. By the time I got there, she'd let the wolf tie her up and stuff her in the closet, just like I'd told her to.

THE BIG BAD WOLF: (Pg 92) You should've seen her face! (mocking) "Why Grandma, what big teeth you've got!" The girl needs some serious glasses if she really thought I was her grandma. Look at all the fur, man! (lifts arm awkwardly) I mean, if her grandma looks like this, then she's got one freaky grandma! I thought she'd take one look at me and run laughing -- or screaming -- from the room! I never dreamed she'd stick around.

FOR EDUCATIONAL USE ONLY

SECRET AGENT LITTLE RED RIDING HOOD: (Pg 31) But then it all went down the drain. All that work. All that planning. For nothing. Here comes the big, bad woodsman to save the day. Couldn't he see that I had it all under control? I was going to pound on that wolf's head, I tell you. (karate chops in the air) Had it all planned out. I'd even gotten in a kick or two before the woodsman ruined everything.

THE BIG BAD WOLF: (Pg 92) She practically stuck her head in I my mouth; she was so close to my face! You gotta give me a break, man! I couldn't help but lick her a little! (cowers as an unseen woodsman raises his ax) Whoa! Hold back on the axe, man! Go check the closet! Her old granny's in there. I didn't harm a gray hair on her head! Go on! Go see! (points in one direction and then runs off in the other direction, yelling) Some people just can't take a joke, can they?

SECRET AGENT LITTLE RED RIDING HOOD: (Pg 31) Guess the one good thing is I kept my cover. Secret Agent Little Red Riding Hood, at your service. (bows)

SOURCE INFORMATION

Author: Rebecca Young
Book: Famous Fantasy Character Monologs
ISBN: 978-1566081160
Publisher: Meriwether Publishing
Date (Month/Year): Sept 2006

FOR EDUCATIONAL USE ONLY