Breast Men

By Bill Bozzone and Joe DiPietro

INTRODUCTION

Stuart and Lloyd are lifelong best friends who've gone away for a men's weekend to help Lloyd (a beefy fireman) get over his recent breakup with a busty girlfriend. A travel agent mistakenly booked them into a room at Love Acres, a romantic retreat in the Poconos, and their original plans to drink beer, watch old movies, hang out by the pool and do guy things are disrupted when Stuart (a lonely fire dispatcher) makes a confession. A medical condition has caused Stuart to grow womanly breasts and he needs money for an operation to fix it.

Breast Men by Bill Bozzone and Joe DiPietro

LLOYD: God, this is so perfect. Oh! It's better than the brochure even! You'd have to be made of stone not to lose your heart in a place like this. (Stuart enters, He looks around, astonished)

STUART: You've got to be kidding. This is somebody's idea of romantic?

LLOYD: I think it's spectacular!

STUART: What kind of sick female came up with this place?

LLOYD: Leave it to you, a man, not to appreciate a love shrine like this! Oh God, if only Sara was here . . . (Lloyd moves to the phone, dials.)

STUART: Lloyd, she left you three and a half weeks ago, and since then you've done nothing but whine and grovel . . .

LLOYD: (Into phone.) Sara, I know you're checking messages!

STUART: Lloyd, don't!

LLOYD: Guess where I am?! Does the name Love Acres mean anything to you? That's right! I came up here without you! Yeah, I carne up with a big, fat waitress I picked up at Stuckey's! She looks just like Sally Struthers in those Feed the Children commercials! She's beautiful! I'm lying! It's me and Stuart! You can imagine how much fun that is! (Stuart starts to pull the phone away from Lloyd.) - call me! I'm dying here! (Stuart manages to grab it and hang up.)

STUART: Lloyd, I will not allow you to do this to yourself! Pull it together! Listen, I know women, I've been through plenty of' em!

FOR EDUCATIONAL USE ONLY

LLOYD: You haven't had a date in eighteen months.

STUART: Hey! That's because I'm choosy! And let me tell ya, a woman's like a bus - you miss one, another comes along in five minutes.

LLOYD: Sara and I used to ride buses all the time.

STUART: Lloyd, I'm trying to be supportive, you're getting to be annoying. Why can't it be like the old days? Remember? No women! We used to sit up all night drinking Peppermint Schnapps and just being buds. Face facts: she's gone, life goes on, get over it! God, it's hot in here! (Stuart goes to air conditioner, fiddles with it.)

LLOYD: You know what I miss about Sara? I say this with the utmost respect: her breasts.

STUART: *(Banging on the air conditioner.) N*ot working! (Stuart goes to phone.)

LLOYD: I know it's not profound or anything, but they were shaped like balled-up, perfect little kittens. They weren't too big, they weren't too small.

STUART: (Into phone.) I'll hold - (To Lloyd.) Lloyd look, I know what you're going through. I'm a breast man! But you can't let a couple of mammary glands run your life -

LLOYD: Yes, I can - .

STUART: (Into phone.) No, not you, sir. Look, we're in cottage . . . (Stuart looks over to Lloyd.)

LLOYD: Cupid II.

STUART: (Into phone.) We're in the Cupid II and the air conditioner won't turn on. Can you make it quick? Okay, thanks. (He hangs up.)

LLOYD: Why don't you take off your sweater if you're hot?

STUART: Who said I'm hot?

LLOYD: How can you not be hot? It's gotta be ninety-five degrees in here.(Lloyd peels off his shirt.)

STUART: We're firemen, Lloyd. To a fireman ninety-five degrees isn't that hot.

LLOYD: You're not a fireman. You're a dispatcher.

STUART: Hey, don't go down that road!

LLOYD: I just think it's important to be dear who fights the fires and who sits in the cage and talks on the phone . . .

FOR EDUCATIONAL USE ONLY

STUART: Hey! Who do you think is responsible for everything? Like the night you were driving and you couldn't find City Hall. Who had the entire map of Bayonne committed to mind?

LLOYD: By the time you got us there, it was burnt to the ground.

STUART: At least you got there. You made an appearance.

LLOYD: Fine. Now would you please take that sweater off. It's July - in the Poconos.

STUART: Why are you so obsessed with me and my sweater? It's my lucky sweater! You got a problem with that?

LLOYD: You know, I had a lucky sweater. Sara took it. She probably gave it to her new boyfriend. I followed them. He weighs over 300 pounds. A 300-pound man is stretching out my lucky sweater! (beat) I'm sorry. I don't mean to continuously talk about my wife. My ex-wife. She's gone, dammit. It's only been three and a half weeks. And those have been the best three and a half weeks of my life. What am I saying? I wish I were dead. We should have gone hunting. You could have shot me. My life is over! I need a hug.

STUART: No hugging! Lloyd, get a grip! We're in Cupid II. There will be no hugging this weekend.

LLOYD: You know what I even did for that woman: I even wrote her a poem - me! It was like - like giving birth! I don't suppose you want to hear it?

STUART: No Lloyd, I'd hate to.

LLOYD: Okay, here goes. It's to the tune of Gilligan's Island. Just sit right back and you'll hear a tale / A tale of this crazy guy / Who met the woman of his dreams / My oh my oh my. / The girl was a mighty poem of love / Her breasts were firm as mountains / And every time I held her tight /We erupted like love fountains.

STUART: Good poem,

LLOYD: If someone wrote that for me, I'd be theirs.

LLOYD: Thanks, buddy. Hey, but you're more than my buddy: we're the two musketeers! (They gesture)

LLOYD: I love you coming on this trip with me. I love you going in half with me.

STUART: Half? I'm going in half?

FOR EDUCATIONAL USE ONLY

LLOYD: Well, sure. I just thought it was understood. (A beat)

STUART: Well - fine. Okay. One shipmate throwing a life preserver to his best amigo. I'll write you a check because I know if I were in trouble, you'd write me an even bigger check.

LLOYD: Hey, c'mon! We're here to have a good time no matter how awful my life is! No more moping! Put on your swim trunks! Let's cruise the pool! (Lloyd thrusts off his shorts)

STUART: No! Uh, swimming - no, I, uh - not possible.

LLOYD: C'mon, we'll sit pool-side, meet some babes, show off our chests-

STUART: No swimming. Lloyd - we've got to talk.

LLOYD: I'll talk about anything but Sara. . . . God I miss her! The way she would eat a cheeseburger - she'd wolf it down in one bite, no chewing! The woman was a saint!

STUART: Listen, I know you're going through a really bad time right now- And I sympathize. But there are worse problems in the world to have, much worse, and I have one of them now.

LLOYD: What're you talking about? .

STUART: Okay, I didn't want to mention this back home, cause I wanted your full attention. Here goes - I need an operation. I have a terrible medical problem.

LLOYD: Sara once had a terrible medical problem . . .

STUART: Could we please get off of Sara?! I have a terrible medical problem. I need an operation. And it costs about five grand. And firemen don't make that kind of money.

LLOYD: You're not a fireman. You don't even have the red hat.

STUART: Look, I need an operation! Can I have the money or not?

LLOYD: What's the matter?

STUART: I - I can't reveal that. It's personal.

LLOYD: We're the two musketeers. (They gesture) How personal can it be?

STUART: Look, it's private and I just need you to trust me.

LLOYD: I told you about my swollen testicle.

STUART: I know, and I love you for that, but this is - even more personal. This surgery, our medical insurance doesn't cover it. It's considered - cosmetic.

LLOYD: Like a nose job?

FOR EDUCATIONAL USE ONLY

STUART: It's not exactly a nose job. It's what the doctors call a suction-assisted lipectomy - or a gynocostomy.

LLOYD: Sounds like a woman thing-

STUART: Me? A woman thing? Right! That's a laugh! You're out of your mind! C'mon, punch me in the stomach as hard as you can! (Lloyd prepares to) No, forget it! Okay, it's a condition that affects men - the more manly, the more it affects them - and it involves a swelling of the pectoral area to unnatural, mammalian proportions.

LLOYD: Help me out, Stu, in English.

STUART: I've grown breasts. (Pause)

LLOYD: That's not funny. I'm very vulnerable right now, and you're playing jokes.

STUART: It's no joke. My doctor says it's a common condition.

LLOYD: (After a moment) You have breasts. (Pause) So how come I don't see them?

STUART: They're not huge, and, well, the sweater is hiding them. (A beat. Lloyd stares)

LLOYD: Well, let me see' em.

STUART: I rather you didn't.

LLOYD: Then let me feel them.

STUART: That's not going to happen. Lloyd, if you had breasts, would you show them to me?

LLOYD: We're the two musketeers. (They gesture)

STUART: Lloyd, as my sidekick, I'm asking you to trust me and give me the money!

LLOYD: You know what I think this is? I think this is you attempting to divert all the attention. My heart is in two, on the floor, I'm a melted pile of agony, and you come in here, trying to steal my thunder -

STUART: Look, Lloyd, lots of men get divorced, not lots of men grow breasts!

LLOYD: You do not have breasts! (Lloyd lunges for Stuart and feels his chest. - Stuart tries to stop him, but it is too late. A frozen moment, as Lloyd has his hands on his buddy's chest. Lloyd quickly reels back. Stuart steps away, very embarrassed.)

LLOYD: Oh my God . . .

STUART: Happy now?

FOR EDUCATIONAL USE ONLY

LLOYD: Those are - those are - You have breasts. Breasts! It's just so amazing . . .

STUART: So you now understand the severity of the problem. Write me a check.

LLOYD: Well- ya know, I, uh, I could do that. But something like this doesn't come along every day.

STUART: What're you talking about?

LLOYD: - well, I've always been curious about breasts. I'm a breast man, too! And I have a lot of questions - questions that I'm too embarrassed to ever ask a real woman.

STUART: You want to ask me questions? (Lloyd nods)

STUART: Then you'll give me the money?

LLOYD: Absolutely.

STUART: I feel like a prostitute, but go ahead, ask your questions.

LLOYD: Okay. Do you wear a brassiere?

STUART: No, but I do-wear an elastic support garment.

LLOYD: That's a brassiere!

STUART: Next question!

LLOYD: All right. (Beat.) When you rub them, do you get a warm, glow-y sensation? .

STUART: I have no idea. I haven't tried.

LLOYD: No time like the present.

STUART: I'm not gonna try it in front of you!

LLOYD: Stuart, come on. We're as close as any two guys can be. We've seen each other in the basest of situations. (A beat. Stuart softly rubs one of his breasts)

STUART: Yeah, it feels nice.

LLOYD: You want me to do the other one?

STUART: Get away from me! That's it! Questions are over! The check!

LLOYD: Look, this is an awful, awful problem. And of course I'll give. you the money - well, I would, if I had it.

STUART: You don't have it?

LLOYD: Sara took our checkbook. But hey, I'm gonna help you get the money!

FOR EDUCATIONAL USE ONLY

STUART: How?

LLOYD: Top of my head - we sell your story to television.

STUART: What?!

LLOYD: Just hear me out. We go on Oprah. My Best Buddy Has Breasts. You cry like a baby. We run over to Richard Bey. You're wearing a halter top. The audience goes nuts! TV movies, Broadway! We make a mint! You can have all the operations you want!

STUART: Lloyd look - we're not going on television. The last thing in the world I want is for anyone else to know about this.

LLOYD: Okay, pisano, okay. Right now, you're the only person in the world who means anything to me. Nothing will ever come between us. I want you to know that. My God, my brain is on overload! I'm here in this fabulous love nest I was supposed to be sharing with my beloved Sara. Instead, my wife's gone, my money's gone, I'm a broken shell of a man, and my best friend has breasts.

STUART: Hey, we're the two musketeers (They gesture, Lloyd still sobbing) We'll pull through this! How about tonight, it's just you and me.

LLOYD: Really?

STUART: Yeah, why don't you run out and rent a movie - a guy movie!

LLOYD: I love guy movies!

STUART: Yeah, like Lethal Weapon! And pick up a bunch of guy stuff!

LLOYD: Yeah, guy stuff! (Stuart leads Lloyd to the door)

STUART: And we'll just be here for each other, we'll get through it, we'll do what we have to, wives or no wives, breasts or no breasts! We're a tag team!

LLOYD: You're right, you're right! Who needs women, dammit! We're men! All we need is men! Men, men and more men!

FOR EDUCATIONAL USE ONLY

SOURCE INFORMATION

Author: Bill Bozzone and Joe DiPietro
Book: Act One '95: The Complete Plays, Pgs 27-40
ISBN: 978-1880399972
Publisher: Smith and Kraus
Date (Month/Year): June 1996

AWARD HISTORY

NIETOC

FOR EDUCATIONAL USE ONLY