(Tom and Ben are in a psych ward. They are making lots of drug induced convulsions, weird faces, etc. Tom and Ben are obviously hallucinating.)

TOM. This is the good part! Hold on, Hold on… can you feel it?

BEN. Oh yeah… ooohhhh yeah

TOM. Oh man, did you see that? did you see that?

BEN. Pink camels everywhere.

TOM. That would explain the two humps in your pants.

BEN. Wait… wait… here comes the best part! Can you see this, Mr. Pink Donkey? Yeah? well screw you too!

TOM. Oh my. Oh, oh my. Auntie Jemima, I'm comin home to you!

(suddenly interrupted by door slamming/nurse)

BEN. Ah! Wha?

TOM. Uhhh… one moment….

(they try to compose themselves)

BEN. Why… no nurse, we would never do something like sniff all the helium for the party balloons while simultaneously drinking all the robutussin we could get our hands on.

TOM. No. Never.

BEN. We're angels. Now, can someone get this lusty pink lemur off my back? He's starting to get a bit uppity.

TOM. Uh, Ben…

BEN. I mean, uh... you're my lusty lemur… Nurse Carmicheal…. with your… (shudders) tantalizing waves of flesh.

TOM. Yes nurse, I'll see to him. Good day!

BEN. Bye bye…. lover. (disappointed sigh) We have got to get a better hobby.

TOM. We live in the psych ward. The only allowed hobbies are ball bouncing and connect the dots.

BEN. Actually, I had my ball bouncing privleges taken away for recklessly beating the elderly.

TOM. A shame.

BEN. Yeah.

TOM. I feel smothered.

BEN. Mmmhmm, it's like we've been buried under a pile of dead babies.

TOM. Uh huh…

BEN. And then the babies come alive and start trying to eat us.

TOM. Ok. moving on…

BEN. And we keep trying to dig our way out but they just keep throwing on MORE BABIES AND MORE BABIES. (pauses desperately before exploding) LET ME OUT OF THIS TODDLER HELLHOLE, YOU BASTARDS!

TOM. (ben breathing heavily) …are you finished?

BEN. Yes. Now let's get to the bottom of our mysterious circumstances.

TOM. Alright. (thinks briefly) I've got it. We've been on drugs. Hard drugs.

BEN. No, something more sinister is at work here, and I'm not talking about that pink version of Andrew Jackson.

TOM. The commie bastard.

BEN. We've been out cold for days: our pink animals taken, our honor defiled, our wives… ravished.

TOM. Our wives divorced us. We're psycho, remember?

BEN. Ah yes. But I married the toaster last week. See, here's the certificate. Oh what a lover Mr. Warm Slots is.

TOM. (taking certificate) Ben, the nurses gave that to you so you would stop befouling their breakfast.

BEN. Lies! (sniffs) The air is filled with treachery. (sniffs again) And eroticism. Lots of eroticism.

TOM. I can't argue with that.

BEN. This can mean only one thing.

TOM. What?

BEN. The Brits are trying to retake the colonies!

TOM. Uh, somehow I don't think that's what it means. Margaret Thatcher is not very erotic.

BEN. I expected so much from you, you lousy canadian.

TOM. Half-canadian. I was raised in Maine.

BEN. I was raised to bludgeon british subjects every night!

TOM. I'm one bad mountie you don't want to mess with, yah.

BEN. You're no match for… (transforms himself into a revolutionary pose) Patrick Henry.

TOM. Can I help you sir, yah?

BEN. Ah, I can take advantage of your canadian submissiveness with my American cowboy diplomacy.

TOM. Yah.

BEN. Good mountie… may I beat you senseless?

TOM. Sure. Here is my nightstick, yah?

BEN. I love being a patriot.

TOM. Would you like some gasoline too, yah?

BEN. A little here, a dab there… the flame of liberty will always burn, my friend.

TOM. Yah I'm just like a fried pig canuck no?

BEN. I don't eat canadian bacon. (lights)

TOM. Whoooooaaah…. a little intense, eh, Ben?

BEN. I'm just trying to make this as historically accurate as possible. After all, I am a historian.

TOM. How do you know so much about this revolution anyhow?

BEN. A little kid told me.

TOM. I thought by law you weren't allowed to be around children.

BEN. But this was a… special child. (sexual implications)

TOM. Who?

BEN. Very… special.

TOM. Who was he?

BEN. He looked a lot like you, actually.

TOM. Ohh… you mean (pops) this child!

BEN. How ya doin little fella?

TOM. Boy oh boy, mister, I sure do love the american revolution.

BEN. And I love when you talk dirty to me.

TOM. Can I have your autograph, Mr. Washington?

BEN. Not now son, Uncle George is busy busting British beans.

TOM. I'll do my dance for you!

BEN. That's really not necessary.

TOM. (singing) We represent the Lexington league (continues while Ben talks)

BEN. Please stop… oh the horror… uh nurse! nurse, can I borrow that tazer? Thank you. Ok, little Timmy (stops singing), here's an autograph for you.

TOM. Oh boy! (gets tazered) Golly, that tickles! (zapped again). Oooh! (zapped) Uhm, my face is starting to burn (zapped into submission).

BEN. Ah, I love the smell of fried children.

TOM. This is taking too long… we haven't even killed a single brit yet.

BEN. You're right. I shall be Muhammed Ali: lean, mean, revolutionary machine.

TOM. And I will play the marauding redcoats.

BEN. I float like a federalist, sting like a bee!

(Ben procedes to punch, uppercut, kick in groin Brits, who scream things like "bloody hell" and "crikey")

TOM. (indian) How. White devil shall not defeat us again.

(Ben coughs. Indian catches pneumonia, sneezes, dies.)

TOM. I'm Ben Franklin – you can't kill a fellow patriot.

BEN. You're right. Here, have this kite. (Franklin is electrocuted, dies.)

TOM. (in small, joyous, stupid voice) You wouldn't kill a sweet little differently abled child, would you?

BEN. Ahhh(stops mid punch) no. Awwww… let's sing the happy song!

Both: This is the happy song, Oh I love the happy song, It makes me so very very happy cause… (song repeats. As they both sing, Ben stops dancing while continuing to sing. He quickly prepares a large revolutionary style cannon and fires.)

TOM. You heartless bastard.

BEN. Yep. Had it shot out in the War of 1812.

TOM. Too bad I shall now kill you… with your own tweezers! (steals tweezers)

BEN. OW! (killed with tweezers). Apparently, I wasn't patriotic enough.

TOM. Let's keep this war moving!

BEN. You're the boss.

TOM. Ok, now you're George Washington. Didn't he grow lots of hemp?

BEN. Yes…

TOM. Dude, then can I get a hit off that gnarly hemp wig of yours?

BEN. Well, I don't see… No! Get away.

TOM. Denied.

BEN. Rightfully so. Now, I need a Jefferson.

TOM. (like guy from TV show "The Jeffersons") Weezie, Get in heah!

BEN. I need a Thomas Jefferson.

TOM. Georgie! Get in heah.

BEN. More colonial.

TOM. Gooooooood Evening, George. Care for a revolution?

BEN. No.

TOM. Come on, Ben, play along.

BEN. This is MY revolution. You don't get to help.

TOM. Sure I do. Victory is all about teamwork!

BEN. Oh, that was SO the trojan war. This is the 18th century – individualism is in.

TOM. Let me do just a little revolting.

BEN. Well, maybe I'll… (faking, pointing the opposite direction) Look! A young slave mistress!

TOM. Where?

BEN. Made ya look! (kills him with some inventive karate or something)

TOM. That wasn't fair. I was on your side.

BEN. Says you.

TOM. Says my pal Jesus, too! You will pay for that.

BEN. How?

TOM. I will be your worst enemy… a scourge from within.

BEN. You couldn't possibly mean…

TOM. Oh yes… (pops) Oh Georgie-poo! Remember me, old wooden-tooth?

BEN. (winces at her voice). Hello, Martha. (winces again at her name).

TOM. Oh George, it's been so long since I've felt your touch… (George shudders) and thank heavens for it!

BEN. I tried to be a good husband Martha. It's hard to be spouse and a revolutionary.

TOM. The only revolution you started is the one with male domination!

BEN. Oh, Martha, really.

TOM. I'm smelly and old! listen to me! I've been involved in resurrecting you and your friends.

BEN. You have?

TOM. Yes, I have. There was a great disturbance in history, and I had to get you boys back before the Adamses through another tea party.

BEN. So you brought me back to save the nation?

TOM. Screw the nation. I just wanted to nag you again.

BEN. Martha, why are you so bitter?

TOM. You never gave me the treatment I deserved.

BEN. But I did! I bludgeoned you every night.

TOM. You should have finished the job!

(George gives look of approval, wails on her. He lets up after awhile)

TOM. You missed a spot!

(George beats again)

TOM. I'll see you in hell, and your extra nipples too!

BEN. (shamefully covering chest) Shhhhhh! (Martha dies)I'll never know how they can solve domestic disputes these days without a good wailing.

TOM. I believe it involves several lawyers and a well orchestrated pony riding accident.

BEN. That's for another day. Let's move on: George has discovered the plot, now he needs more clues. Who does he run into next?

TOM. Former President Elanor Roosevelt.

BEN. No, he doesn't like women in power, remember?

TOM. You just shoot down all my ideas. Fine then, I'll just pretend I'm drunk.

BEN. Come now, you always do this when we're having a little tiff.

TOM. Hey George, remember me? Remember ol' Eli?

George: Eli?

TOM. (obviously drunk) Eli Whitney, that's me!

BEN. Whitney… ah yes, the gin.

TOM. I don't know nuttin about yer gin!

BEN. I meant the cotton gin.

TOM. (suspisciously) Oh yeah... right.

BEN. I've got a proposition for you, Whitney.

TOM. Oh, you always were a dirty one, Mrs. Adams. You can make a patriot out of me anyday.

BEN. I am not your revolutionary hussie! Get your hands off of me!

TOM. You always were a tough cookie, m'lady.

BEN. Now listen, Whitney, get some sense into yourself. We have a problem. Someone in this era has been changing history, bringing us old folks back to life, defiling lady liberty…

TOM. You keep your hands offa my woman, Washington!

BEN. Eli… this person is an evil person…

TOM. You're right, George, but you should watch yer mouth - someone is trying to destroy our nation… and that someone is me!

(Tom rips "mask" off, reveals self to be Benedict Arnold)

BEN. Arnold!

TOM. Comma Benedict.

BEN. I'm gonna be the original Thug Gangsta President, Booker T. Washington.

TOM. Bring it on, "home boy".

BEN. I've had jus' bout enough of yo First Amendment. Now iz time to feel duh bizurn from my sizecond amendment. (shoots him)

TOM. Your bullets can't hurt me.

BEN. (during this sequence, he grabs something huge and wields it infront of his waist as a giant phallis) Well den, I guess they didn't gimme dis big "washin'ton monument" fo' nothin!

TOM. Oww! Watch where you point that thing.

BEN. Prepare for the ultimate bitch-slap. (kills him with phallis) That wasn't as hard as I expected it to be. (Tom begins to laugh again) Come on Tom, let's go…

TOM. Mwuahahahaha

BEN. Wha?

TOM. You'll have to beat a more royal foe to destroy the twisted hopes of inbred England!

BEN. You mean, crazy King George III?

TOM. What of King George? I shall be a king twice his stature and thrice his weight!

BEN. No!

TOM. Yes! I am King Henry the Eighth, and I shall devour you as I devoured my wives.

BEN. (as he is bitten by the king) Oww!

TOM. Mmmmm…. like a fresh baby sandwhich.

BEN. But, but… you're no match for… Former President Bob Barker!

TOM. Come on down, tallywhacker.

BEN. Don't make me beat you with my skinny microphone.

TOM. Nooo… nooo… it burns! it burns! Blaargh… (eats mic, chews).

BEN. Geez… I guess it's time to go to the bonus round. Today you'll be bidding on… (pulls out short person) one midget!

TOM. Unngh?

BEN. Now, the American pasttime: midget bowling. (to midget) Don't worry little guy, you're going to a better place.

TOM. Don't make me laugh!

BEN. Here we gooo…. (bowls midget, which lands in king's mouth) Strike! Yes. (King begins to choke) Where's your protestant church now? (King dies) Well that's done with. Now, which one of you lucky ladies wants to be my next high bid?

TOM. (suddenly recovering) Ben! Oh Ben, how I've missed you.

BEN. Tom! Where have you been?

TOM. Dead for 200 years.

BEN. Really? Did you see Jesus?

TOM. Oh yes.

BEN. Did he say anything about giving me back my camels?

TOM. No. But he did condemn you to hell.

BEN. Fair enough.

TOM. (beat)Well… this was a perfect waste of time.

BEN. Eh, I don't think so, Tom.

TOM. Then you really are crazy.

BEN. They don't beat me every night with rubber mallets for nothing!

TOM. Heheh. Boy do those sting.

BEN. Seriously, though, if having fun with life isn't worthwhile, then what is?

TOM. Perhaps something slightly moral?

BEN. Nah, that's just pishposh. If history was always depressing you, why would it be worth making some more?

TOM. You're right. From now on, we're gonna make history damn entertaining.

BEN. We already have, Tom; we already have.

(They both nod in agreement for a few seconds. Just when it seems like it's over…)

TOM. Got any Robotussin?

Ze End.
