JED: Good evening everyone and welcome prospective investors. My name is Jed and this is my partner, Boyd.

BOYD: Shalom.

JED: Before we begin, we'd like to take a moment to thank Dr. and Mrs. Sid Lipbalm for the use of their beautiful apartment. Unfortunately, they're unable to be with us tonight.

BOYD: They left on a two week trip to Israel.

JED: Now, you all understand that this is a backer's audition.

BOYD: Which is a presentation of a Broadway musical, which we have written, hopes that some of you may be interested in in-cesting.

JED: In –VESTING.

BOYD: Investing, right.

JED: It encompasses the entire history of civilization. Budgeted at 83 million dollars. Twelve hours of pure entertainment. Showing in 4 three-hour installments. Of course, we can't do the show in its entirety. So tonight we'll be doing highlights. Act 1, Scene 1

BOYD: A bare stage. We begin in darkness. The whole thing started with one

JED: He said one.

BOYD: Big

JED: Oh, so big

BOYD: One . . . . Big . . . . Bang!

INTRODUCTION

The Big Bang by Boyd Graham. In the beginning . . . all was silent . . . . (Give 5 seconds of silence)

VOICE OVER: A voice from the heavens shatters the silence, "Let there be light!" A creature of strength, pride and acute manlitude ready to face his destiny.

BOYD as ADAM: Hi, my name is Adam. I was made from a pile of dust.

JED as EVE: Then Adam ordered a madam with a thirty-eight inch bust. God said . . .

BOYD as GOD: Play all day in the sunshine and you may stay in your birthday suit.

BOYD as ADAM: Free food and frontal nudity. We're always nude and the food is free.

JED as EVE: Free food and frontal nudity is not what it's cracked up to be. We're bored with our anatomy and sick of all this fruit.

ADAM: Bananas for supper again? I'm going for a walk.

EVE: That's the third time he's stomped out on me this week. I bet he's going to see his new girlfriend, the cheap chimp. (Pick an apple from the tree of knowledge)

SATAN (Serpent): Trouble in paradise? You know what to do. All the powers of the universe right there in your hot little hand. Go on take a bite.

EVE: I'm tempted

SATAN (Serpent): You should listen to Satan if you wanna win back your man.

EVE: God says, "Eat what you want, but the apple or crap'll hit the fan."

SATAN (Serpent): That's a silly myth. It's a Granny Smith.

EVE: (Taking a bite) All right!

SATAN (Serpent): Yes! (Serpent exits)

EVE: I hid the apples from Adam and backed them in a pie. He never knew that he had'em. Now I'm the apple of his eye.

ADAM: Are we growing old? (Realizing what has happened). You ate the apple!

EVE: I'm afraid you did too.

ADAM: Uh. Oh!

(End scene)

JED: Adam and Eve's weakness brought a curse to all mankind. Women would forever suffer the pain of childbirth

BOYD: And men would forever suffer hearing about it.

TRANSITION: Act 1. Scene 2

JED: A half-finished pyramid comes up through the floor of the stage. The pyramid splits open to reveal the Nile.

BOYD: Trumpets blare heralding Egypt's queen. (Jed plays the famous race track bugle call on the trumpet) Thank you, Jed. That was so. . . . Egyptian.

JED: Here serene highness, ruler of all Egypt, Queen Nefertiti!

BOYD as NEFERTITI: You better eat you Wheaties when you work at Nefertiti's, honey. I don't need a man to define me. King Tut? King Butt. And Ramses? Now there's a pharaoh with a narrow mind. Hey Ramses, everyone thinks your sphinx stinks. No, honey, I don't need a man. That became clear with my last husband. What was his name, oh, yeah, Not-a-lot-in-common.

TRANSITION: Act II. Scene 3

JED: Dim lights . . . . lights up . . . and its 1491, Spain, the court of Ferdinand and Isabella. Picture the splendor of the royal palace. All of that stained glass, thousands of candles. Columbus alone with the Queen.

(End scene)

JED as COLUMBUS: Your Highness, I greatly appreciate this audience. I'm honored to be in the presence of such a noblewoman. Not to mention great beauty.

BOYD as ISABELLA: (with a heavy Puerto Rican accent) Sanc jou, sanc jou berry much.

COLUMBUS: Your Highness, a woman of your taste and intelligence, your vast knowledge and enormous talent. Your elegance and poise, your tact and diplomacy. Your ability to handle every.

ISABELLA: (Annoyed, checking her watch) Columbus, I'm a berry berry busy woman. Jou got five minutes.

COLUMBUS: Signora, I have a theory. I think the world is round. Out there, over the ocean, riches and wealth abound. If you provide the backing and let my sails go unfurled, you'll go down in history as the woman who founded the new wolrd.

ISABELLA: Esta loco! My father, may he rest in pieces, always told me that the great big world is flat. I love my people. Nothing comes between us. If you succeed this could mean a lot to Spain, cause the most important thing to me is happiness (pronounced "a penis")

COLUMBUS: I beg your pardon?

ISABELLA: 'Appines. Everyone has the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of 'appiness. The Junited States of Isabella

TRANSITION: Act 3. Scene 4

BOYD: The beautiful Pocahontas and the equally gorgeous Minnehaha have come to the village of the Manhattans to go husband hunting. We meet the Indian maidens in the lobby bar of the Algonquin Hotel.

BOYD as MINNEHAHA: Pocahontas, darling. You look fabulous. I love the one feather.

JED as POCAHONTAS: I was just about to give up on you.

MINNEHAHA: I was detained, darling. Let's just say this isn't the first Manhattan I've had today.

POCAHONTAS: Details, details.

MINNEHAHA: I have only three words to describe him. Ugh-a-ly. Darling, there's plenty to be had but nothing worth having.

POCAHONTAS: This trip's been a bust.

MINNEHAHA: Tell me about it. . . I don't feel like going to the Pow-Wow.

POCAHONTAS: What should we do with the tickets?

MINNEHAHA: Scalp 'em! (bursts into laughter at the joke) You know, they say it's time we found a mate.

POCAHONTAS: To tell the truth, I'm not ready to settle down and raise all those children, like my sister. I want an adventure. All we've dated here are losers.

MINNEHAHA: And how!

POCAHONTAS: There's the brave next door.

MINNEHAHA: You mean "Crashing Boor?" And there's the Chief of the Insomniac, "Such a Drag"

POCAHONTAS: There's the hypochondriac, "Ol' Popping Pills." Better him than "Breaking Wind."

(Scene Break because of phone ringing)

BOYD: Hello? Nothing. Uh huh, uh huh, uh huh, uh huh, uh huh. Okay. Bye (He hangs up, becoming increasingly frantic) The Lipbalms are coming back.

JED: In two weeks

BOYD: Their flight was cancelled. They're coming back . . . NOW!

JED: What about the rest of the twentieth century?

BOYD: Ladies and Gentlemen: That's it for our presentation. Before you go, we'd like to let you know that in The Big Bang we skyrocket through the twentieth century by dramatizing . . .
