Little Footsteps

By Ted Tally

BEN: (while painting) It's not that I don't like kids. Hey, I do! I'm walking in the park and I see some dad scraping bubblegum off his little girl's shoe - it just tears me up inside. You know what I mean? (Pause) The thing is, though - I like kids in the abstract. But when I have a kid, he won't live in the abstract. He'll live in my apartment. Right here. Which, let's face it, is already crammed with one husband, one wife, and eight years' worth of furniture. So we're not just talking about the cosmic wonder of creation here. We're dealing with a Manhattan real estate problem.

INTRODUCTION

ACTOR: Joanie is an insecure aspiring artist.
ACTRESS: Her husband, Ben - a witty but emotionally stunted television promoter.
ACTOR: In this selection, we find them converting a room in their apartment into a nursery . . .
ACTRESS: a longstanding project that has revealed both Joanie's agonizing self-doubts and Ben's hostility toward her
TOGETHER: Little Footsteps by Ted Tally

[Ben and Joanie are painting what used to be their dining room to make a nursery for the new baby] (Sound of a door opening, off and JOANIE's voice)

JOANIE: (Off) Ben? I'm back! Hi, honey! God, I missed you! (She hurries to him happily, gives him a big hug) (He returns her hug cautiously, and after a moment she separates from him, looking down at his boxer shorts) What are you wearing?

BEN: My underwear. I couldn't find anything to wear! And I didn't want to mess up my good clothes.

JOANIE: (Looking around) You sure haven't done much painting in here. What've you been up to? God, we're so far behind now . . . (Pause. Then, more cheerfully) Well, never mind . . . we'll do it together. (She kisses him. He turns his face, taking the kiss on his cheek) That'll be more fun anyway! (She takes him by the wrists) Feel. Put your hands right here.

FOR EDUCATIONAL USE ONLY

BEN: Aw, I've got paint all over-

JOANIE: Never mind! Just feel . . . (She places his palms flat against her belly, holds them there. A long silence while they look at one another. He feels her gently, looks down at her bulk)

BEN: (Quietly, with wonder) It's so solid. So dense.

JOANIE: That's us, Ben. A part of us.

BEN: (Ben kneels, putting his ear against her belly) He's running another marathon. Can you tell? Go, kid, go! There's the finish line! Just one guy left to beat! (He glances up at JOANIE, grins) "Fetus, don't fail me now!"

JOANIE: Ben. (But she can't help being amused. Partly to hide this, she kneels at her sketch pad. He rises, circles her)

BEN: What's it like in there? . . . I mean, for one thing, we know it's cramped.

JOANIE: Not to her, it's not. You're just projecting.

BEN: It's hot as hell too, and you've got all this water gooshing around. Gooosh . . . goooooossshhh! (He kneels behind her, pushing against her playfully, trying to distract her from her work) So I'm floating in here . . . sort of snorkeling . . . and I've got these spooky sounds coming at me. And I can't get away from them! I'm trapped! Ba-da-BOOM! What was that? Ba-daBOOM! It's Mama's heartbeat, right in my ear! (JOANIE smiles) And-what's that other weird noise? (Softly) Rumblerumblerumble . . . Sounds like it's coming from her tummy . . . . rumblerumblerumbleRUMBLERUMBLE! . . . Oh, my God, I just remembered! (Clutching her) We drank some BEER today! Mama-she's gonna-she's gonna burp! RUN FOR YOUR LIVES! BURRRRRRRRRRUP! (This last is right in her ear. JOANIE falls over, wincing, laughing outright. He laughs too) No wonder we're so cranky when we finally get out of there! We've just spent nine months in the Twilight Zone. (A muffled shout, into her belly) Don't come out! This is a warning! It's weird out here, too!

FOR EDUCATIONAL USE ONLY

JOANIE: (Laughing) You'll catch cold, dressed that way. And I need your help out here. (Pushes him away) Go put on some more clothes!

BEN: (A bit irritated) You're not my mother too, you know.

JOANIE: Get out of here! I mean it! (She rises, props her sketchbook out of the way against a wall)

BEN: (He exits through the french doors; but after only a moment sticks his head back in. To the audience) Don't believe a word she says.

JOANIE: GO!! (He exits. grinning. She shakes her head, exasperated) Ben! Ben, Ben, BEN . . (She takes her smock from the ladder. As she puts it on, she glances at the audience – throughout the rest of this monologue, she is preparing and putting a butterfly stencil on the wall with cans of spray paint)

Our friends ask me why I want another baby when I've already got one. (Pause) Somehow that used to sound funnier . . . What's he been doing in here, anyway - He promised me he'd spend the whole weekend painting the sky. But, as you can see . . . Mr. Responsibility. (She crosses to the wall, up right, where she tapes up her stencil) The irony is, he's gonna make a great father. He really is! . . . I wish you could see him with other people's kids. He'll get down on the floor and hold this serious, top-secret, totally involved conversation with some two-year-old! But, then, if you ask him what on earth they could possibly find to talk about for all that time, he says something like, "Know your enemy." (works for a moment) He works in television, [you know]. (A slight pause) Why can't he . . . why can't he just be a little bit happier about this? Or at least pretend he is. I mean, I look at a tree and think, God! what would that look like, the first time you ever saw one? What would a butterfly look like, or a rainbow, if you didn't even know they had names yet? Can't Ben see that something is happening here? Something-finally-important in our lives.

FOR EDUCATIONAL USE ONLY

(Pause. She pours some paint into an aluminum troy, picks up a pair of brushes) (BEN reenters through the kitchen door, now wearing ratty jeans and a corduroy shirt over a T-shirt. He is finishing a sandwich, and also sipping a beer)

BEN: (To audience) Lies, lies, a tissue of lies . . . What? What is it?

JOANIE: I guess you'd have to know sooner or later, Ben. I told them . . . you were in TV.

BEN: (Horrified) Oh, God, no. You didn't.

JOANIE: Sorry. Your secret is out.

BEN: (Kneels) Friends, I was young, I was a fool. They said I'd meet Miss Piggy. (To JOANIE, as he rises) Where do you need me?

JOANIE: Take down the other stencils.

BEN: Check. (He sets down his beer and sandwich on the windowsill, then starts pulling down stencils. She has begun painting blue sky on the wall)

BEN: Actually, I'm in television sports promotion. Those little teasers that warn you not to miss next Saturday's flaming tapioca plunge?

JOANIE: They're called "promos."

BEN: Well, that's what I do. I design those promos. For ten seconds a week I'm a genius.

JOANIE: He was a finalist for a Clio Award.

BEN: I lost out to some ex-jock doing a public-service spot on drug abuse. Depressed me so much I got stoned for a week.

JOANIE: (Irritated) Why do you tell them things like that? You know that's not true.

BEN: Okay. Two days. (He crosses to dump his handful of stencils by the pile of paint cans at right center) Joanie's a little paranoid about drugs. She's afraid we did

FOR EDUCATIONAL USE ONLY

so many of them in college-

JOANIE: You did so many!

BEN: I did so many of them that the baby will be born looking like Flipper. (A brief but vivid impression) "Orkl Ork! Ork! Orkin JOANIE: (Shocked) That's not funny! Don't even think that! (Furious) You go too far sometimes, you know that? You think you're so hilarious - telling your stupid little dead-baby jokes when our friends come over-

BEN: (To audience) I've never done that!

JOANIE: Oh, uh-huhl (Crossing down toward audience) "How do you make a dead baby float? One scoop of ice cream, and one scoop of dead baby:' How do you think it makes me feel when you say things like that? What if something did happen? You think it's so funny to joke about now, but what if it did? I know you, you'd freak out! You wouldn't be able to handle it! You'd be out the door like a shot, and leave me stuck with-leave m-me ss-stuck with-(She starts to cry, turns her back angrily. She tries to start painting again)

BEN: (Following) That's just not true! First of all, it's not going to happen. Okay? And second of all, we're in this thing together-one hundred percent. My God, don't you know that I would never, ever desert you because of something bad happening? Even though it's not going to happen. (Touching her shoulders) Don't you know that by now, sweetheart?

JOANIE: (Shaking free) Don't call me sweetheart, either! You only say those things when you're mad at me.

BEN: (Still trying to lighten the situation, but it fails) "Orkl Ork! Orkl" (Very upset, she pulls her mask over her face to continue painting. Her back to the audience, point-edly ignoring BEN. He looks at the audience helplessly) There I go again! (Crossing down center) What is wrong with me? I don't want to hurt her-I don't mean to hurt her-and I hurt her. (Pause) Okay, but she's overreacting, too. She really is! I'm not taking the rap for all of this ... (Pause) What if Joanie was right? (Pause) What if one of those jokes did come true? What if something went wrong with the baby? Would I be able to handle it, or would I panic like she said . . . ?

FOR EDUCATIONAL USE ONLY

(Fantasy sequence – transition needs some type of ominous sound/music – can be voiced by Joanie before she rises and turns around ominously. She wears green plastic gloves and stares at BEN over the top of her painting mask. She moves forward into his circle of light)

JOANIE: Benjamin?

BEN: (Turns, sees her) Oh, hiya, Dr. Latimer! Did everything come out okay in the delivery room? (She is silent. He chuckles nervously) That's a joke! You know- "baby?" "come out?"

JOANIE: My poor dear Benjamin . . .

BEN: (Growing alarmed) It's Joanie, isn't it? Something's happened to Joanie!

JOANIE: (Pulls mask down sadly) Your wife is fine. I have her under sedation. She-- doesn't know yet.

BEN: Know what? (Pause) You mean-the baby? (She nods) You mean it's . . . ?

JOANIE: Oh no, no, it's alive! (Pause) That is, we definitely feel that it's living.

BEN: Why-why do you say "it?" Is it a boy or a girl?

JOANIE: (Hesitates) Yes! . . . Look, why split hairs? I told you it was alive.

BEN: (Shaking her) WHAT-IS-WRONG-WITH-MYCHILD?!

JOANIE: (frees herself gently) Ben, I'm going to level with you. Your - well, let's call him your son - was born without a body.

BEN: Without a body? Oh my God, that's horrible!

JOANIE: (Sighs) Yes. Yes, it is. I can only suspect that you or Joanie must have experimented at some point with a marijuana cigarette.

BEN: You mean . . . my boy is nothing but a head? That's all there is to him?

JOANIE: I only wish it were that simple, Ben. Your son doesn't even have a head. In fact, he's just an eyeball. I have him right here. (JOANIE takes a glass eyeball out of her pocket. As BEN rises, she hands it to him)

FOR EDUCATIONAL USE ONLY

BEN: (Stunned) This is . . . my son?

JOANIE: Careful how you hold him. He blinks.

BEN: (Suddenly shrieking) OH MY GOD, MY SON IS AN EYEBALL! OH MY GOD! WHAT COULD BE WORSE THAN THIS?!

JOANIE: (Whispers) He's blind!

(BEN screams, tossing the eyeball high into the air. JOANIE catches the eye. Laughing insanely, she returns to her former position. BEN clutches his chest and gasps for breath. JOANIE, instantly back in character, turns from her painting)

JOANIE: Ben . . . ? What's the matter?

BEN: (Squeaks) Heart attack! (She rushes to him, but he avoids her and begins jogging frantically in place, turning in little circles)

JOANIE: What are you doing? Hold stilll

BEN: If I stop I'll die! But if I just keep jogging! Then maybe I'll feel like it's just beating fast! Because I'm jogging! And not because I'm having! A heart attack!

JOANIE: (She finally stops his jogging. He stares at her, panting) You're having an anxiety attack! You've had them before, so we both know there's nothing to be afraid of. In a few minutes it'll go away, if you just don't panic. Okay? Focus on me! We're gonna pretend we're in Lamaze class, okay? I want you to take a long, deep breath. (He nods) Are you ready? Breathe . . . innn. Slow and steady . . . that's it, keep going . . . Good, now hold it for a minute. (Pause) Okay, now let that air out, but slowwwly . . . and innn . . . hold it . . . and ouuut. Innnn . . . and ouuut. Slowwwwly!

BEN: (Pause, his breathing has returned to almost normal) I shouldn't have said what I said about Flipper. I'm sorry. (She looks at him for a long moment, sighs. She looks at the walls, then back at BEN)

JOANIE: Do the sun. (She crosses back to the wall, left, picks up her tray and begins

FOR EDUCATIONAL USE ONLY

painting areas of sky again)

BEN: The sun! Riiiight! Jolly or smiling face of the jolly or sun . . . (Pause) What color?

JOANIE: Well, what color do you think?

BEN: (Shrugs) Depends on how much air pollution.

JOANIE: Try yellow.

BEN: Yellow! Now, there's an idea! See, Joanie knows about stuff like that, 'cause she's got a B.A. in art. (He crawls about in search of yellow paint)

JOANIE: Right now I'm a volunteer assistant at the Met.

BEN: Scared you might finally make some money? (She gives him a look) Joke! It's a joke . . . c'mon!

JOANIE: They've been very understanding about the pregnancy, and they said this winter, if I want, I can even do some tour-group lectures. (Pause) They like me there, they really do. (BEN crosses upstage, toward the hallway, where more paint cans are piled)

BEN: "A little gal with your talents, my goodness, we're just going to have to put you on salary one of these days."

JOANIE: (Pauses in her work) You've made your point, okay? So just drop it. (Joanie steps out of the scene to speak to the audience. Sadly . . . Quietly) Let's have it, he said. So what if it's a surprise. We're as ready as we'll ever be - he said that. And now, because I was dumb enough to take him at his word, he'll never forgive me. (Pause). . . I've asked myself a hundred times - what if I'm having this baby for all the wrong reasons? What if this is really just some ridiculous attempt to make Ben stop taking me for granted? Or what if I'm only going through with this because I can't keep a job? . . . terrible questions, and I've agonized over them for weeks. (Joanie freezes)

BEN: She's always right, and I'm always wrong! Okay? If you're keeping score, that's all you need to know. (He paces angrily, kicking at the discarded stencils) She's this sweet Earth Mother, so put-upon, and I'm just a spoiled immature selfish jerk who only thinks about himself-okay? (Crossing downstage toward audience) Except for one little thing-i-I'm the one who has to get up in the morningl Okay? I'm the one who goes off to work so we might have a little money around here, so we can pay for the kid's twenty-two million dollars a year in college tuition! And she's the one (He turns, gesturing and sees her . . . she enters the scene. He takes a deep breath and plunges on) -She's the one who sits around here doing her little drawings all day, goes off to do her volunteer work, has tea with the girls, for Christ's sake, and then says - (He looks at his watch) -"Oh, what the hell, I got some time to kill, I think I'll have a baby!" So you tell me - (Then, to her) You tell me, who's so selfish around here?

FOR EDUCATIONAL USE ONLY

JOANIE: Do you even know how pathetic that sounds?

BEN: I never wanted this kid! Never! And I don't want him now!

JOANIE: Liar! LIAR!

BEN: Every day you get bigger, and we get smaller! Can't you understand? I liked us the way we were!

JOANIE: Ben, you're trying to make me choose between you and the baby, and I can't do that anymore! You can't ask me to!

BEN: What the hell was I supposed to do? Knock you out and drag you to the abortion?

JOANIE: (White, shaken) You don't say that to me! You don't say to me something that can never be taken back!

BEN: (Shouting) A baby! A baby can never be taken back!

JOANIE: Get out of here. Just get out of this apartment . . . (LONG PAUSE)

BEN: (Almost a whisper) Mommy, Mommy . . . what is wrong with Daddy?

JOANIE: He's scared. (Pause) I'm scared too, baby.

FOR EDUCATIONAL USE ONLY

BEN: Joanie? We can fix it-?

JOANIE: (Sadly) Not this time, Ben. (She exits through the french doors. After a moment we hear the front door opening and then closing)

BEN: (Softly) Joanie . . .?

SOURCE INFORMATION

Author: Ted Tally
ISBN: 978-0822206767
Publisher: Dramatists Play Service, Inc.
Date (Month/Year): Jan 1998

AWARD HISTORY

IL State Qualifier

FOR EDUCATIONAL USE ONLY