"Winning Rounds Since 2000"

Scene: An American High School.

Fred: (Finding binder and picking it up, or taking it off of shelf.) Hey, check it out, Sam, what is this?

Sam: It's a D-Ring binder, Fred! It's ancient!

F: (Opens binder and flips through a few pages, then several more, very quickly.) Whoa! There's a copy of every test I've ever seen at the school! –. Better bring it to Mr. Grey–.

(Michael Kellum, a Gollum-like charcter, suddenly appears and grabs the binder.)

Michael Kellum: Ah ha! Give it to me! It's mine!

F: Who are you? Let go!

M: (Hisses, runs away.)

S: That was Michael Kellum! He's a legend, he's like 25 years old and still at this high school.

F: Well, he's not getting this D-Ring binder. I've got to turn it in.

S: A Quest! Sweet! I call sidekick!

One Sophomore, One D-Ring Binder, One Quest to Destroy it. The Lore of the D-Rings.

S: Are you sure you want to turn it in? You could ace every test in every class!

F: Nah, not really my style. You?

S: Nah, I've already got a 4.2 GPA and that's technically impossible already.

F: Hey, Mr. Grey, I found something–

Grey: (Aggressively grabs the binder.) Ah! Fred O'Gabbins! I know this binder! Many years ago, the principal of this school, Sir Ron, created the D-Ring Binders, three for the English teachers, seven for those who dare to instruct science and math, and nine just sort of, you know, social studies, music and whatever. But whenever a student has discovered a binder, they become obsessed with it, unable to think beyond the tests, lingering on the outskirts of academic achievement forevermore– This One D-Ring Binder contains them all! Bear it at once to the office and there cast it into the Great Shredder of Gethromel!

S: Seriously? That's awesome!

G: Actually, it's just what I call the regular shredder.

F: Can't you do it? It's a Saturday, we're only here because–

G: Because you're always talking about movies and books in my class and if you don't destroy the D-Ring Binder, YOU!

F: Oh, please, really?

G: –SHALL NOT–

S: –We all know where this is headed–

G: –PASS!

F: Feel better now?

G: Yes, it's very satisfying, PASS! See? You will take with you a company of heroes to aid you in your quest.

S: I already called sidekick.

F: There's basically no one else here except Chad. (He gestures off stage.)

S: Oooh, Bro-mir!

F: Why do you call him that?

Chad/Bro-mir: (Swaggering.) Dude, Bro! I heard my name, bra!

F: Oh, dear God, that's why.

G: You will also take Kim Li.

S: Ooh, good call, his knowledge of the World of Warcraft is unparalleled!

F: We're fine with just Chad–

C: Solid, bro!

S: Call him Bro-mir!

G: Beware Michael Kellum–He's been watching us for three minutes now–He wants the binder–

F: Why don't you just expel him?

G: He still has a role to play–

S: Ah, a prophecy!

G: No, I cast him in A Streetcar Named Desire, we're doing it at the middle school–

F: Okay, we'll do it. Let's go. We'll just take the senior hallway–

C: Dude, bra! One does not simply walk down the senior hallway!

F: It doesn't matter today, Chad, it's a Saturday.

C: Then, dude bra, why am I here?

F: I assume it it's because you skip class all the time.

C: Bro, harsh.

S: Perhaps we should stop by my locker and get my fire staff.

F: You have a fire staff?

S: I got it from Kim Li! It's an exact replica of a seventh level mage staff as featured in episode 9 of– F: Okay, don't flood the room, Okay, if it makes you guys feel better, no senior hallway. We'll just cut through the cafeteria– (Opens door.) Whoa, what's going on here?

S: SHHH–..Easy, easy– Speech kids are easily disturbed, they can snap at almost any moment–

Orc: Hey! What are you non speech kids doing 'ere?

Orc 2: Yeah, where's your suits?

O: We're starving! We woke up at 4 am. We ain't had nothing to eat but cold pizza for three stinkin' meets!

O2: What's in the binder? (Moves aggressively towards the binder.) You got some sweet cuttings in there, eh? Some sweet Nat Qual cuttings, I bet!

F: Sam, can't you get us out of this? You seem to understand these kids.

S: Understand them, yes, I understand them, I was one of them! And once I have this cursed dental appliance removed I shall be one of them again! Okay, I got this. (He takes a second to get in character or some kind of pre-speaking ritual.) HEY LOOK, THEY'RE POSTING SOMETHING OVER THERE!

O: (Displaying extreme excitement.) Is it Poetry Finals? OMG! OMG! OMG! Move maggots! (He shoves them aside with a sweeping motion, spins, and switches into Chad/Bro-Mir.)

C: (Stumbling, and shell shocked.) Dude, I have no idea what just happened. Why do we have to destroy the D-Ring Binder anyway?

S: It's a compendium of solutions to this academic establishment's assessments! This appliance is killing me.

F: It's all test answers.

C: Dude. Bra. Give it to me. (He reaches for binder.) I totally need it. Bro, I want it. I can skip class and still pass tests, dude bra.

F: I can't, Chad, I'm supposed to destroy it. Besides, you need to actually learn things, having the answers isn't–.

(Kellum suddenly appears again, grabbing the binder. He struggles with Freddo.)

M: Ah ha! Give it to me! You stole it!

C: Dude! Not cool! I need that bro! Bro! Bro! Dude! Dude, bro! Bro! bro. bro. dude bro. (Collapses.)

S: The mighty Bro-mir has fallen!

F: (Continuing to struggle with Kellum.) He'll be fine, he just hasn't had a Monster energy drink in the last 30 minutes.

M: Give it to ME!!!
F: You're like 25 years old and still in high-school–I don't think it's helping.

M: It's not my fault I can't do the daily assignments!

F: Why can't you?

M: They're not in here! Idiot!

F: Well yeah, you have to do the work sometimes. (He puts out supreme effort and rips the binder from Kellum's hands. Holds it over head.) So, let's just destroy it, and then you can move on with your life.
S: (Aside.) –And so, faced with a dilemma of epic proportions, the twisted creature Kellum–

M: That's really distracting, that thing that you're doing.

F: Look, we'll destroy it, but we'll help you with your classes.

S: Speak for yourself! I have a reputation to uphold!

F: You have replica firestaff in your locker.

S: Touche.

M: Well, that's better than my plan.

F: What was your plan?

M: I bites you and runs away with the D-Ring binder.

S: And so the final page of our quest is turned–

(Spins and turns into Mr. Grey.)

G: (Holding a staff.) With the one D-ring destroyed, Michael Kellum totally nailed the role of Stanley Kowalski in A Streetcar Named Desire.

K: (Screaming Marlon Brando style.) Stella, hey Stella!

G: Kid's a natural, anyway, he graduated or something. Bro-mir eventually found employment at a Hollister, while Sam and Freddo finished high school. And I, I got this rockin' firestaff. Got the hook up from Kim Li, bought it with money from a deal I made to turn the introduction of this speech into three more speeches. That’s right, I'm gonna prequel this sucker, and then I'm gonna sequel it– (Takes a deep nasal inhalation.) –Ah, I smell a franchise!
